Our son joined KLB in year 7 and is currently in year 11, he has significant and visible SEN and when he started we worried that he would struggle to cope in a large secondary school. From the very start of his time at KLB the SEN staff and wider staff team have worked tirelessly to include our son in school life and make him feel welcome and valued.

He has completed Duke of Edinburgh expeditions, been on a school trip abroad, and at every opportunity staff have looked for ways they could include our son. His self esteem has improved markedly in his time at KLB, he is achieving his potential academically and he has absolutely thrived here.

The culture of inclusion at the school extends from the leadership, to teachers, TAs and the pupils themselves. Our son has experienced so many small acts of kindness and acceptance of him being who he is, and they all add up to him being happy and settled at school. KLB has been outstanding for him.
